

First Annual UK Maternal Mental Health Alliance Conference

Wednesday 13 September 2017, 09:00 – 17.30

Sir Alexander Fleming Building Foyer and Lecture Theatre
Imperial College London, South Kensington Campus, London SW7 2Az

Intergenerational Mental Health Conference: working with mums and babies in perinatal mental health practice

Join practitioners, service users and academics to explore how a whole-family approach can break the intergenerational cycle of mental health problems. The conference will highlight ground-breaking academic research, showcase innovative practice, and tell the stories of perinatal mental health service users across the UK.

International expert speakers include:

Mark Hanson, British Heart Foundation
Professor of Cardiovascular Science,
University of Southampton

Sheila Redfern, Consultant Clinical Psychologist and Head of Clinical Services, Anna Freud National Centre for Children and Families

Carmine Pariante, Professor of Biological Psychiatry, King's College London &
Consultant Perinatal Psychiatrist

Susie Orbach Psychotherapist and author

Do you know a project which deserves to be recognised? Nominate it for the Maternal Mental Health Alliance's first perinatal mental health awards for achievement in:

- Perinatal mental health education and training award
- Anti-stigma award for perinatal mental health awareness raising
- Perinatal peer support award
- Partner involvement award
- Big Lottery transgenerational service award

<http://maternalmentalhealthalliance.org/conference/awards>

Let the work you do inspire others! Submit a poster on your project at <http://maternalmentalhealthalliance.org/conference/posters>

The Intergenerational Mental Health Conference: remembering mum and baby in perinatal mental health practice is funded by the National Lottery through the Big Lottery Fund